Small Step for a Green Future: Bigoli Fresh Artisan Pasta

A local and statewide favorite for fresh artisan pasta, Bigoli Fresh Pasta located at 426 Orange Avenue in Sand City, is making strides toward becoming a greener business. Bigoli is actively participating in GreenWaste's three-stream collection program: trash, recycling, and organics. While it may not seem significant, having an organics container makes a substantial difference for small businesses. In California alone, 6 million tons of food waste end up in landfills. Bigoli is taking initiative to reduce that amount by pursuing Green Business certification. The owner of Bigoli Michele Cremonese remarks, "It feels good to be part of a movement. These small steps we are taking to reduce food waste going into our landfills benefit us all and the Earth."

The impact of small businesses is sizable; 90% of California companies employ 20 workers or fewer, exerting a considerable environmental influence collectively. Sand City residents, you can play a role in this by supporting local businesses that prioritize sustainability.

No Plastic Bags in Recycling or Organics

RECYCLING:

Reduce waste and recycle without bagging in plastic; place recyclable items straight into your recycling container loose, dry, and empty. Why? Plastic bags are wasteful and can jam up the sorting machinery at the Recycling Center.

ORGANICS:

Keep food scraps and plant trimmings loose. Why? Organics are turned into compost and put back into the soil. If you wouldn't want your food grown in it, keep it out of the organics container.

Feed the Soil with Keith Day's Compost!

Transform your landscape with Keith Day's Landscaping Supply. Their premium compost and all-natural forest mulch can enhance your outdoor spaces. Made from organic materials, the nutrient-rich compost promotes healthy plant growth. The local-sourced forest mulch adds natural beauty to your surroundings.
